

If you take this (the relaxation of the FCC rules) to its logical conclusion, you could end up with a situation where one company owns the newspaper, the television station, the radio station and the cable system. ... I don't know of any issue before the commission that is more fraught with serious consequences for the American people than the media ownership rules.